

The most admirable and lovely parts of this movie :

- 1 . The brotherhood love shown was awe.
- 2 . The moment when Bobby called Shajji as Chetta was hilarious and most lovely.
- 3 . The light effects was marvellous. Also all the songs were melodic and beautifully shot.
- 4 . I also loved the moment when Shajji understands the feeling of Bonny's mother, though her own sons didn't understand her.
- 5 . I loved the relationship shown between Bonny and Shajji. Bobby says to Baby : "The bond between Bonny and Shajji is something different and divine. They started playing at the time of their parent's first night !"
- Though here it is conveyed in a funny way, it holds an emotional connect.
6. I also loved the part when Shajji brought home widow Sathi, wife of Shajji's best friend.
7. I also loved the part, when Bobby says to Sathi "There is nothing left to be ruined anymore. Please stay here itself !"
- 8 . I whole throughout the film, liked the part of Frankie, who always speaks the truth, no matter what the situation is!

The parts which were not upto the mark :

1 . Though they tried to convey, still male domination and conservative thoughts exists in the society, they might have conveyed it in a somewhat peaceful way.

The psycho character played by Shammi scared me a lot, so that I completely got dull and lost my mood.I couldn't able to recover from that mood for 3 hours.

2 . Though they tried to convey the remarriage for widows , the horrible death of her husband was so hard to digest.

3 . The violence shown at last, was so scary.

4 . Also it is not a film to watch along with the kids of our family, as it holds lots of kissing scenes and adult concepts.
